Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 29 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Brightening up in the west and south, staying cloudy elsewhere.

Today:
Dull, murky start for many with outbreaks of drizzle and occasional spells of more persistent rain. Rain easing from most parts by early afternoon, with bright or sunny spells developing west of London and near the south coast. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud returning to coastal parts but some clear spells persisting inland, where they do it will turn rather misty. Light winds everywhere. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Thursday:
Cloudy near the coast with the odd spot of light rain. Dry inland with bright or sunny spells. Light winds. Perhaps an isolated late shower over Hampshire. Maximum temperature 24 deg C (75 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Each morning will start dull but slowly improve. Occasional mainly light showers on Friday with some sunny spells. More cloud on Saturday and Sunday with heavy showers, thundery at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.